When Gomez Porter beocme a test subject in an experimental drug trial, he is asked to keep track of any strange experiences through a Blog. What Gomez isn't ready for, is so many of his experiences suddenly seem strange; the antiques dealer trying to buy his old tax papers, his neighbor boiling salamanders on this balcony at midnight, the super sexy lab assistant who falls for him but i unable to express herself in terms outside the realm of science. But when one of the trial participants turns up dead and another goes missing, Gomez begins to fear for his life. No longer sure who he can trust and which of his experiences are real and which merely drug induced illusions, he decides it's time to go underground and work out a devious plan.

Heartbreak sucks! Irrespective of background, this emotional turbulence does not discriminate, tearing through its victims of any age, gender, ethnicity, or social class. Even you reading these words understand the depths of this grief. It's horrible! It's dangerous! It can be life-threatening, and yet not enough people take this pain seriously! Why isn't there a reliable guide which can help us through this all-consuming agony? Hello! There is! This is that guide. How "Heartbreak Sucks!" works is by assigning small (often fun!) daily tasks to the reader, each tried-and-tested to improve all elements of an individual's life constructively. And after 30 days, the sufferer will have transformed into a better version of themselves with a greater understanding of the healing process. Simple! No longer do you have to feel lost in a sea of questions because we can answer them all together. Should you cut off the ex? What's the best way to treat mutual friends? How quickly should you rebound? How can you divert the depression? What type of partner is best suited to you? Could you turn this ordeal into an opportunity? How can you exploit your mishap to become a stronger you? Who are you anyway? Don't worry about it! We will address these topics and many others in great detail, each advancing your emotional state (and your desirability!) substantially. Furthermore, by pursuing these purposeful actions, your distracted month will zip past like ripping off a band-aid. Above even this promise, "Heartbreak Sucks!" will teach you from a place of understanding a fundamental element the other books have neglected. Clinical psychobabble lacks the necessary compassion. Excessive humour will only provide temporary relief. What is required is a program that runs down the middle, one that does not sugar-coat the issues but encourages a smile as the reader moves towards liberation. The casual tone of Jared's voice refuses to speak from a superior podium of authority, preferring a careful mix of empathy and amusement to lift the spirits and nudge the healing forward. Because in these testing times of misery, broken hearts need a friendly hand, not a rigid set of instructions. Did we mention the inspirational quotes? We have those! Or how about the bunny rabbits? We've got tons of those too. So many bunnies, you'll love them. You're safe here. "Heartbreak Sucks! How to Get over Your Breakup in 30 Days" is Jared Woods' third book. Still, he is far better known as a key scriptwriter for the cartoon series Pencilmation, enjoyed by millions upon millions of weekly viewers (officially the biggest animated channel on YouTube). When he endured a severe attack of heartbreak some years ago, he set out to defeat the turmoil by consuming all of the material available on this subject. In doing so, he developed a foolproof 30-day system that allowed him to get on with his life. What a beneficial tool! Far too beneficial to keep to himself. Hence, Jared penned this guide, passing the assistance forward as his first foray into the self-help world of writing.

From the award winning author of ?ÇyNo Hope for Gomez! comes a collection of 20 impossible tales.Permeating the cracks between the past and the present is the realm of Unspent Time. Pockets of ?Çyshould have beens and ?Çymight have happened. Time that was allotted but never spent. In this realm we find the stories that could have been true. Such as the story of Matthew G., who skip-stones through life on the back of mysterious black-outs, blinking in and out of conscious existence at random. Or the revealing tale of Goki Feng Ho: the ancient Chinese art of decoding the meaning of car license plates. And the heartbreaking story of the man responsible for choosing the colors of the insides of your shoes. As he toils away in obscurity, his work impacts society in ways well never fully comprehend. And lets not forget the story behind Unspent Time itself, the metaphysical ramifications of which will leave the scientific community feeling mostly indifferent about it for decades to come?Ç* Praise for ?ÇyNo Hope for Gomez!: ?Ç*challenges our perceptions about how we think and interact with the world around us. Kirkus Discoveries Extremely witty and clever writing that contains keen insights into human nature. California Chronicle The antics in this book will leave the reader laughing; Graham Parke is a genius. Readers Favorite

'A cracking thriller' THE TIMES. Germany, October 1944: Dozens of cities lie in ruins. Enemy armies are at the gates. For the Thousand Year Reich, time is running out. Desperate to avoid the humiliation of unconditional surrender, German intelligence launch Operation Finisterre - a last-ditch plan to enable Hitler to deny the savage logic of a war on two fronts and bluff his way to the negotiating table. Success depends on two individuals: Stefan Portisch, a German naval officer washed ashore on the coast of Spain after the loss of his U-boat, and Hector Gomez, an ex-FBI detective, planted by Director J. Edgar Hoover in the middle of the most secret place on earth: the American atomic bomb complex. Both men will find themselves fighting for survival as Operation Finisterre plays itself out.

Edgar Award-winning editor Penzler's new anthology rolls out the red carpet for the stories that Hollywood is made of. He delivers the director's cut on these classic short stories and the films they gave rise to.

www.TheOriginalHeatherGraham.com Murdered by a dead man? A woman named Maria Gomez is murdered in Miami, apparently by her husband—who'd been presumed dead, slain by a crime boss. FBI agent Brett Cody can't believe it; dead or alive, the man had loved his wife. He also can't help feeling guilty, since he was responsible for protecting Miguel and Maria Gomez. A few miles away, Lara Mayhew has just begun working at a dolphin research facility. She loves her new job—until a dolphin brings her something unexpected from the deep. A human hand. More body parts show up, and when Brett looks into the situation, he discovers that the dismembered corpse is Miguel's. Soon, rumors of crazed zombies abound in the Miami media, and the Krewe of Hunters, an elite FBI unit of paranormal investigators, is called in. Brett and Lara find themselves working with the Krewe—and working closely together. An elderly crime boss who's losing his memory seems to be key to solving this case, but...there's no motive. Unless Brett and Lara can uncover one in the Miami underworld. And that means they have to protect themselves. And each other.

In the aftermath of the pope's death, police inspector Paola Dicanti is called in to investigate the brutal murders of two cardinals, assisted by American priest and former army intelligence officer Anthony Fowler, who begins to suspect that someone in the Vatican is aiding the killer. A first novel. Reprint.

You haven't heard of William Colton Hughes. Or, if you have, then you're not telling anybody. Not telling them anything, ever. He's not the serial killer on the news, in the textbooks. He's the one out there still punching his card, and a few other people's too. He is a nightmare come to life, waiting in his apartment for you to knock on his door. William Colton Hughes is living his fantasy: his victims are delivered to his apartment every few days. But when he's suddenly alone, no visitors, nobody to talk to but himself, he begins to lose what little of his mind he has left. Has his benefactor, his employer, been his prison warden all along? His apartment complex a hospital? Is he going to have to go back to heaving dark plastic bags into dumpsters when nobody's looking? Or will Dashboard Mary, a mysterious woman hell-bent on revenge, get to him first? This is William Colton Hughes. Come and knock on his door.
